

Master Cattle Producer Program Overview

The Mississippi Master Cattle Producer Program is a comprehensive training offered by the Mississippi State University Extension Service in major beef cattle production subject areas.

- Beef Cattle Nutrition
- Forage Systems
- Beef Cattle Reproduction
- Breeding and Genetics
- Economics and Marketing
- Herd Health and Handling
- Beef End Product
- Beef Quality Assurance

The 8-subject Internet-based course is designed for persons interested in learning more about improving beef cattle production and marketing practices. Training focuses on improving overall management and decision-making skills and developing a broad beef cattle production knowledge base.

The Internet-based training will feature streaming video of speakers and slides. Slides, reference materials, and certification exams will be available for online viewing or download. Participants will be able to submit questions and chat online during the presentations. At the end of each presentation, presenters will address audience questions.
